STEM Continuous Professional Development
at European Universities

2nd STEM-CPD Summer School

University of Naples Federico II (Italy), 2-7 October 2022

PARTICIPANTS: The Summer School is opened to European university lecturers who intend to organize Continuous Professional Development (CPD) activities among their peers, improving the quality of the academic teaching at their home institutions (STEM faculties: Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics).

GOALS & OUTCOMES: The participants from various countries will develop teaching competences in the European context. The alumni will be able to organize local CPD activities; promote student and CPD participant centred learning; create a teaching and learning community.

METHODS & TOOLS: The STEM-CPD Summer School study programme is based on active learning and is designed according to constructive alignment principle and TPACK (Technological Pedagogical Content Knowledge) model. The Summer School offers interactive workshops and training sessions, collaborative groups, and discussion.

HOW TO APPLY: Application form available on the project website.
Deadline: 15.06.2022.

CERTIFICATION: a Certificate stating the successful completion of the School will be issued.

FINANCIAL CONDITIONS: The project's budget covers costs of travel and accommodation of ECTN members according to Erasmus plus programme regulations. Decisions on admission to the 2nd summer school will be made by the project management based on the answers in the application questionnaire and the project conditions.
